E. and the north-west point N.W. by W. J W. Chart, Eastern archipelago, eastern portion, 9jJf. Another bay, situated to the westward of Awek road, affords anchorage in a depth of 22 fathoms, but a reef extends 2 cables off its eastern and 5 cables off its western points. The entrance to this bay lies S.E. by E. from the east side of Miosini island, and has a bright, white beach near its eastern point. Serewin, about 19 miles westward of Awek road, has anchorage off the village in 28 fathoms water, over clay, with Abai island bearing N.N.W., Miosini island N.E., and the village S.S.W. Two rivulets supply fresh water, and a footpath leads to Ansus bay on the south coast of the island. Immediately westward of Serewin is a small bay, free from danger, named Pom, with...
