Brakeman Schwartz, the only man on the train who had not yet been questioned, deadheaded his way, in railway parlance, back from Davenport the following night on conductor Danforth s train, and reported to Mr. Pinkerton the next morning. He was a tall, fine-looking young fellow, about twenty-seven, with thin lips and a face that showed determination. He was rather dapper in dress, and kept on his gloves during the conversation. Mr. Pinkerton received 130 him pleasantly, and, after they had been smoking and chatting for an hour or so, he suggested to Schwartz that he would be more comfortable with his gloves off. Schwartz accordingly removed them, and revealed red marks on the backs of his hands, such as might have been made by finger-nails digging into them. How did you hurt your hands, Schwartz? asked Mr. Pinkerton. Oh, I did that handling baggage night before last, explained Schwartz; and then...
